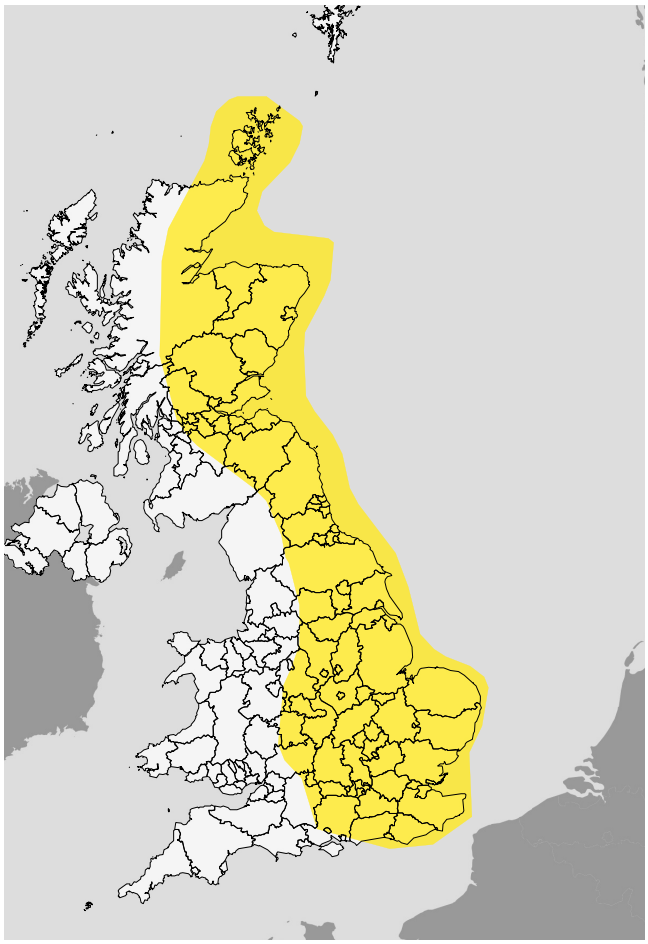
Yellow warning
Snow & Ice

Between
12:00 Sat 6 Feb 2021 and
23:59 Sun 7 Feb 2021



Snow showers in the far north-east of the UK will spread southwards. Chance of heavier snow for a time in the south.

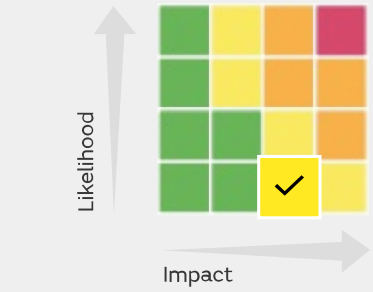
What to expect

- There is a small chance of travel delays on roads with some stranded vehicles and passengers, along with delayed or cancelled rail and air travel
- There is a small chance that power cuts will occur and other services, such as mobile phone coverage, may be affected
- There is a slight chance that some rural communities could become cut off
- A small chance that untreated pavements and cycle paths become impassable

Further details

Cold air, along with snow showers to low levels pushing inland from the North Sea, is expected to spread south during the weekend. Not all locations will see snow, with the showers likely to miss some places altogether. In addition to the showers, there is a chance that an extended period of more persistent snowfall could impact parts of the Midlands and southeast England overnight Saturday and through Sunday.

This is all likely to bring areas of accumulating snow through the period with some icy stretches developing, with some parts seeing 5-10 cm, possibly 15 cm of snow.



Very low likelihood of medium impacts

Snow & Ice

Between
12:00 Sat 6 Feb 2021 and

Further Details (continued)

Although disruption from this event could occur anywhere within this region, the Midlands and south-east England is the area most likely to see disruptive snow accumulating more widely, from later Saturday until the middle of Sunday.

Reason for update

Warning has been updated to cater for earlier start to snow showers to low levels across eastern Scotland, and increasing chance of more persistent snow further west across the south of this region.
